

Department of the political science.

Semester: 3.(CC-6)

Public administration

Public administration is the study of include public organizations, staff and agency, human behaviour, communication, problem solving skill and ecc. Students can learn the following from the subject matter :-

- Students learn basic principles and approaches of public administration.
- Students learn about evaluation of public organizations.
- Develop multicultural and develop leadership readiness and qualities.
- Participate in and contribute to the policy process.
- Develop ethical participate and social responsibilities.